‘Walking Dead’ boss on the finale and the new villain

The Walking Dead wrapped up the first half of its sixth season on Sunday, and while the midseason finale answered some of fans’ burning questions, it raised just as many (or more). USA TODAY’s Kelly Lawler talked to executive producer Scott Gimple all about “Start to Finish,” what’s next for the show in the season’s second half and why the new villain, who will be played by Jeffrey Dean Morgan, is so very different from anything you’ve seen on the show before.

Can you talk about Deanna’s death? It’s one of the few times the moment itself isn’t shown onscreen in the show.

I think Deanna is a character from the beginning who was a fighter. She through a trick of history, her own history, didn’t have all the information about what the world really was. But when she was shown what the world is, she immediately got with the program and continued to fight. And how do we show her at the end? Despite being bitten, despite being given a one-way ticket, she was still fighting.

What was the hardest part of the episode to shoot? There were so many moving parts.

The stuff in the house was very challenging. I have a ton of walkers in a house. That’s the worst house party in the world.

The zombie camouflage trick worked so well for Rick and Glenn in Season 1. Why did it take so long to revisit that?

In some ways Michonne had been using it to a degree with her two walkers. It’s an extreme thing. It’s certainly not the last time we’ll see it. I think there would be limits on doing it whenever. ... For example, Carol had used the guts of walkers in 501. It happens every so often. It’s a pretty extreme measure.

GENE PAGE, AMC

Tovah Feldshuh’s Deanna goes out fighting in The Walking Dead midseason finale.

Why did you decide to end the episode where you did?

That was a point when all of the characters’ stories were set. ... When everybody was either in their most precarious position or when they had keyed in on what they need to do. The table was set for the next part of the story.

On ‘Talking Dead,’ you said Episode 9 is ‘one of the biggest episodes’ you’ve ever done. What makes it so special?

Well, tons and and tons and tons of walkers inside the Alexandria walls. Some incredibly emotionally loaded situations. It’s just incredibly explosive stuff. We had 30,000 in 601, I shouldn’t give the numbers of walkers in 9. ... It’s a very different situation. Shooting all those walkers in Alexandria was no joke.

The prologue scene set up for Negan to enter the show. He’s a favorite from the comics. How is Negan different from the show’s earlier villains?

Negan is pure id. Just unmitigated id. He’s not a psychopath. He’s not crazy. But he is driven and he is very much a character totally unique to the landscape ... that we’ve seen thus far.

How was Jeffrey Dean Morgan cast as Negan?

Jeff was very much aware of the character and when his agents were calling him, he instantly knew what about. He knew it was Negan.

Anything else?

I do believe it will be worth the wait.

8 likable secrets about the filming of 'Hateful Eight'

LOS ANGELES Quentin Tarantino's eighth film, Hateful Eight, is meant to be a special moviegoing experience. The roadshow version of the film (out on Christmas), is three hours long, has an overture and an intermission, and is projected in super-wide ultra 70mm. (A slightly shorter multiplex version is due Jan. 8.)

USA TODAY's Carly Mallenbaum runs down eight things we learned about the process of shooting the bounty hunter film set after the Civil War.

CHARLEY GALLAY, GETTY IMAGES, FOR THE WEINSTEIN COMPANY

1. DÉMIAN BICHIR COMPOSED HIS OWN VERSION OF 'SILENT NIGHT' FOR THE FILM.

Bichir's character, "Mexican Bob," is meant to play Silent Night with one finger, according to Tarantino's Hateful Eight script. But the actor (who is not a pianist) decided to add his own twist to the song, "and Quentin loved it," he says.

2. IT'S THE COLDEST SET BRUCE DERN HAS BEEN ON.

Hateful Eight, set during a blizzard in Wyoming, takes place mostly indoors. But that doesn't mean the shoot was warm: According to actor Dern, it was refrigerated to 20 degrees. That explains why you can see the actors' breath.

3. THE FILM USES THE SAME LENSES AS BEN-HUR.

It was shot in 70mm with the same lenses used on Ben-Hur. When Tarantino learned he had access to the same gear used to shoot the 1959 movie's chariot race, he felt compelled to take advantage of it.

4. TARANTINO USED HIS SIGNATURE BLOOD RECIPE.

The filmmaker, known for bloodshed, made his own special mix with special effects company KNB. He used plenty of "Tarantino Blend" in Hateful Eight.

5. SAMUEL L. JACKSON IS UNFAZED BY THE CRAZY THINGS HIS CHARACTER SAYS.

Jackson's Maj. Marquis Warren has an incredibly graphic monologue. So did he warn his family about the speech? Nope. "They pretty much expect that," he says.

6. KURT RUSSELL PLAYS A CHARACTER UNLIKE ANY HE HAS PLAYED.

Russell's bounty hunter John Ruth doesn't kill his target; he handcuffs her to himself. He's a pretty idiosyncratic guy. "He's not just a bull in the china shop. (Tarantino told me), 'You're the bull, and the whole movie's the china shop,' " Russell explains.

7. SHOOTING WITH SUCH A BIG LENS MADE THINGS INTERESTING.

Tim Roth says the wide lens forced him to be "always on," even in the background, because there's a good chance the camera would capture him.

8. ACTORS REALLY LEARNED HOW TO DRIVE A SIX-HORSE CARRIAGE.

Zoë Bell, who plays Six-Horse Judy, spent three months learning to guide a six-horse carriage. That task was both "challenging" and "rewarding," she says.

ETMC first to offer MAKO® partial knee resurfacing in Tyler

ETMC Tyler is offering an exclusive new procedure that offers new hope for qualifying patients who need the benefits of partial knee replacement surgery without the longer recovery times of invasive surgery.

MAKO® partial knee resurfacing is a minimally invasive treatment option for adults living with early to mid-stage osteoarthritis that has not yet progressed to all three compartments of the knee. MAKO® is less invasive than traditional total knee surgery and is performed using a robotic-arm assisted surgical system.

"MAKO® allows us to treat patients with knee osteoarthritis at earlier stages and with greater precision," said Dr. Joseph Conflitti, surgeon, with the ETMC Orthopedic Institute. "Because it is less invasive and preserves more of the patient's natural knee, the goal is for patients to have relief from their pain, gain back their knee motion and return to their daily activities."

MAKO® potentially offers the following benefits as compared to total knee surgery:

- Reduced pain
- Minimal hospitalization
- More rapid recovery
- Less implant wear and loosening
- Smaller scar
- Better motion and a more natural feeling knee

"Precision is key in planning and performing partial knee surgeries," said Dr. Ken Kaminski, surgeon with Azalea Orthopedics. "For a good outcome you need to align and position the implants just right. Precision in surgery, and in the pre-operative planning process, is what the robotic-arm assisted surgical system can deliver for each individual patient."

Through its innovative use of technology, MAKO® takes partial knee resurfacing to a new level of precision. The robotic-arm assisted surgical system enables the surgeon to complete a patient specific pre-surgical plan that details the technique for bone preparation and customized implant positioning using a CT scan of the patient's own knee. During the procedure, the system creates a three-dimensional, virtual view of the patient's bone surface and correlates the image to the pre-programmed surgical plan. As the surgeon uses the robotic arm, its tactile, auditory and visual feedback limits the bone preparation to the diseased areas and provides for real time adjustments and more optimal implant positioning and placement for each individual patient.

The opportunity for early intervention is important as osteoarthritis is the most common form of arthritis and a leading cause of disability worldwide, according to the American Academy of Orthopaedic Surgeons.

Surgeons with the ETMC Orthopedic Institute and Azalea Orthopedics are performing the procedure only at ETMC Tyler. For more information call 903-747-4110 or visit etmc.org
