Uga X in his doghouse during the first half of a game between South Carolina and Georgia on Sept. 18. JOSHUA L. JONES/ATHENS BANNER-HERALD

Uga X will be in Indianapolis, but getting him there is challenging

Ryne Dennis

Athens (Ga.) Banner-Herald | USA TODAY Network

ATHENS, Ga. — Georgia football mascot Uga X will be in Lucas Oil Stadium for the national championship game, that's for certain.

What's not assured just yet is how he's getting there.

Charles Seiler, the owner and handler of Georgia's lovable mascot, has looked into flights, peeked at the weather, and contemplated loading Uga, Uga's official name, into his car. But he's still open to options for getting college football's top mascot to Indianapolis for Monday night's national title game against Alabama.

"We don't have a plane exactly," Seiler said on Tuesday afternoon. "Personally, I've never driven any higher than Bowling Green, Kentucky, especially this time of year. But we're looking at everything." Uga returned to the sideline this season after NCAA and Southeastern Conference mandates restricted mascots from attendance in 2020.

Seiler, whose father, Sonny, began the tradition in the 1950s, and Uga usually travel with the team to games away from Georgia's Sanford Stadium. Given the team's arrival to Indianapolis on Friday, that's too long for Uga to be away from his Savannah home, Seiler said.

"We don't take the dog early; there's no reason to take him that early," said Seiler, who added that they usually arrive the day before the game and leave the morning after. "It's kind of an in-and-out thing for us, so we do have a couple days to determine what I'm going to do."

Delta added a couple of extra flights directly from Savannah to Indianapolis, Seiler heard while driving into work Tuesday morning, which could be an option. But, Seiler added, there has to be special exception made for Uga to fly on a plane that's not affiliated with the team.

"Since 9-11, we don't fly him commercially unless he can fly up top," Seiler said. "It's got to be a special circumstance. When he flies with the team he's up top and in the exit row with me. That's not a problem, but I don't know how Delta would treat him at this point. We definitely wouldn't fly him if he had to be in the basement of the plane, so that all plays into it."

Seiler is leaning toward making the near 800-mile drive, although there is a chance of rain and cold weather along Sunday's planned route. The distance is the only deterrent, Seiler said, because he prefers having his vehicle near the stadium for Uga.

"I'm not opposed to driving, and I like to have my vehicle at the venue because he's more comfortable that way," Seiler said. "At this point we're just weighing everything."

When Georgia last played in the national title, the trek to Atlanta's Mercedes-Benz Stadium was simpler for Seiler and Uga.

And unlike the 2019 Sugar Bowl against Texas, when Bevo the Longhorn charged toward the Bulldogs' mascot during a photo opportunity, Uga will be the lone live animal in Lucas Oil Stadium.

"We do not fear other animals," Seiler joked.

Uga will be on the field donning his unique championship game jersey on Monday before the 8 p.m. ET kickoff. Everything up to that point, however, is questionable.

"I'm still up in the air a little bit," Seiler said. "But he's going to be there."
