Royals snap losing skid behind Ragans' start vs. Blue Jays

BY JAYLON THOMPSON
jathompson@kstar.com

TORONTO

The Kansas City Royals turned to ace Cole Ragans to snap a three-game losing streak on Tuesday night.

But Ragans delivered in a big way against the Toronto Blue Jays.

The left-hander, who entered the day with a 3.90 ERA, was locked in from the start. He allowed one earned run across 6 2/3 innings in the Royals' 4-1 victory.

"He had the best stuff he's had all year," Royals manager Matt Quatraro said. "He was locating early in the game and got quick outs. ... His stuff is so good, any when he locates, it's really tough."

The Blue Jays flailed against Ragans' premier fastball. He touched 99.6 mph on the pitching radar and mixed in a changeup and slider among his off-speed pitches.

As a result, Ragans posted nine strikeouts. He navigated a talented Blue Jays lineup and limited them to one hit early.

In the second inning, Toronto outfielder Davis Schneider hit a single to right field. However, he was quickly erased by Hunter Renfroe. The veteran outfielder threw out Schneider attempting to stretch the single into a double.

It was Renfroe's 67th outfield assist since the 2017 season.

"I thought we had a great game plan," Ragans said. "The defense played great, and Renfroe, in the second, throwing Schneider out at second (base) was big."

Ragans was in cruise control from that point.

In the sixth inning, Ragans ran into slight trouble as the Blue Jays plated one run. However, he worked out of a potential jam by striking out Justin Turner to end the frame.

The Royals provided Ragans with two early runs. Royals second baseman Michael Massey hit a two-run homer off Blue Jays starter Jose Berrios.

Massey blasted an 84.6 mph slider into the outfield seats. It was his first home run after returning from a low back strain earlier this month.

"(Berrios) doesn't make many mistakes," Massey said. "With him, you have to be ready on every pitch, and hopefully he leaves one middle. Luckily, I was able to get on the inside of that one."

In the eighth inning, the Royals added two key insurance runs. Bobby Witt Jr. and Vinnie Pasquantino collected RBI doubles to extend the lead to 4-1.

Berrios allowed two earned runs. Instead, the night belonged to Ragans. He earned his second victory as the Royals improved to 18-13.

KC also set a franchise record for most wins prior to May 1.

Here are more notable from Tuesday's game:

CALF CRAMP FOR COLE RAGANS

In the seventh inning, Ragans had just walked consecutive batters. As he stood on the mound, Ragans was met by Quatraro, the training staff and teammates. There was a short discussion before Ragans walked to the dugout to conclude his outing.

"(It was) just kind of like a little cramp," Ragans said. "I don't want to push it too far where something serious does end up happening. I looked up and already saw them coming out there. (John Schreiber) came in and got us out of it."

At that point, Ragans was up to 105 pitches. He left two runners on base as Blue Jays outfielder Cavan Biggio was due at the plate.

Ragans remained in the dugout afterward. Meanwhile, Schreiber retired Biggio as the Royals maintained a 2-1 lead.

After the game, Ragans said he felt fine.

ROYALS PROMOTE COLIN SELBY FROM TRIPLE-A

The Kansas City Royals added a fresh arm to the bullpen. On Tuesday, the Royals recalled Colin Selby from Triple-A Omaha.

Selby, 26, was acquired on April 7 from the Pittsburgh Pirates. The Royals sent minor league pitcher Connor Oliver back in the deal. Selby will be available as the Royals continue their three-game series against the Toronto Blue Jays.

In a corresponding move, the Royals sent Jonathan Bowlan back to Triple-A. Bowlan made a spot start in Monday's game in Toronto. He allowed six hits and four runs (three earned) in 2 2/3 innings.

"We're excited," Quatraro said. "He's got a good arm and he has three plus pitches. He needs to execute them in the (strike) zone, but he's somebody we had our eye on for a while. We were able to acquire him a few weeks back."

Selby spent seven seasons in the Pirates organization. He posted a 9.00 ERA in 21 appearances during the 2023 campaign.

KU brings back retro sweatshirt Taylor Swift wore in video

BY SHREYAS LADDHA
sladdha@kstar.com

About two weeks ago, pop star Taylor Swift was seen wearing a retro Kansas Jayhawks sweatshirt in a viral video for the "Fortnight Challenge."

Now, Kansas Athletics is selling that Kansas Jayhawks retro sweatshirt. The price is $54.99. Size small had already sold out in under 30 minutes.

Medium and large momentarily appeared to be sold out, too, but are once again listed on the site. The link is: <http://bit.ly/KURetroSweatshirt>.

KU Athletics teased the sweatshirt release on X (formerly Twitter) on Wednesday morning.

"As @taylorswift13 would say, not a lot going on at the moment," read a KU social media post.

Jayhawk fans had plenty of interest in the sweatshirt when the video was released ... only to find out they'd have to get creative in acquiring it.

In fact, any Taylor Swift-KU crossover usually results in plenty of social-media buzz.

"Taylor Swift is a Jayhawk," tweeted KU fan @ChrisKern11 back in April.

"Taylor Swift wearing a KU sweatshirt is my Roman Empire," wrote another Swift fan on X.

Meanwhile, another Kansas fan may have even inspired the idea of selling the sweatshirt.

"Taylor Swift. The greatest NIL potential in history. Rock Chalk Jayhawk," tweeted @bewarephog.

Swift has been to Lawrence before, though it's been a while. Back in 2009, she visited Lawrence to see her best friend, Abigail Anderson, a KU student. Swift was just 19 years old.

Maybe she'll be back soon ... sporting that retro KU sweatshirt.

Drivers to watch at NASCAR Craftsman Trucks race

BY RANDY COVITZ
Special to The Star

Three previous winners of NASCAR Craftsman Trucks races are entered in the Heart of America 200 at Kansas Speedway on Saturday night.

Matt Crafton is a three-time winner at the track in Kansas City, Kan. Christian Eckes is the current series points leader and he won last fall's race at Kansas Speedway. Grant Enfinger won last spring's race here.

Here's a bit more about each of those three drivers, with two others to watch this weekend:

CHRISTIAN ECKES, NO 19 CHEVROLET

Eckes, 23, has won at Bristol and Martinsville this season and owns seven career wins in the series. In eight trucks starts at Kansas, he has one win, four top-five finishes and six top-10s. Eckes also won the 2019 season-ending ARCA race at Kansas en route to the series championship for McAnally-Hilgemann Racing.

MATT CRAFTON, NO 88 FORD

The three-time truck series champion owns a vast majority of trucks records at Kansas Speedway, including 27 starts, three wins, seven top-fives, 14 top-10s, 4,148 laps; and fastest time of 139.577 mph in 2015. Crafton, 47, finished 11th in the 2023 spring Kansas race for ThorSport. His most recent Kansas win was in the spring of 2020.

GRANT ENFINGER, NO 9 CHEVROLET

Enfinger, 29, has yet to crack the top five this season, but he's the defending champion in this race and always seems to be in the picture at Kansas. In 11 starts here, he has one win, six top-fives and eight top-10s. Enfinger was the hard-luck loser of the trucks playoffs last year, losing the championship by 1 point to Ben Rhodes.

BRETT MOFFITT, NO 16 TOYOTA

Moffitt, the 2018 trucks series champion, will make his season debut for Tricon Garage as part of a part-time schedule. Moffitt, 31, has made 93 career trucks series starts and has posted 13 victories, including the last 2020 race at Kansas. Moffitt, of Grimes, Iowa, also has recorded 40 top-fives and 54 top-10s with more than 12,300 laps led in his career.

CONNOR MOSACK, NO 7 CHEVROLET

Mosack, one of the most versatile drivers in the sport, will make his 2024 debut for Spire Motorsports at Kansas Speedway. In 2023, Mosack competed in six ARCA races and averaged a 3.5 finish, including a win last September in Kansas. Mosack, 24, has made 24 career Xfinity Series appearances. Mosack finished 19th at Las Vegas in his lone trucks series start of 2024.

Defending champ Koepka loves grind of PGA Championship

BY ALEX BUTLER
UPI.com

Defending champion Brooks Koepka says he anticipates and loves the competitive nature and grind of the 2024 PGA Championship, which will be held Thursday through Sunday at Valhalla Golf Club in Louisville, Kentucky.

"It's a grinding week," Koepka, ranked No. 39 in the world, told reporters Wednesday in Louisville. "You've gotta be fully locked in. I feel like you can't take one shot off. And I love that."

The 156-player field includes 16 former champions and 33 major winners. World No. 1 Scottie Scheffler is a heavy favorite to win his second consecutive major title.

No. 2 Rory McIlroy, Koepka, No. 3 Xander Schauffele and No. 6 Ludvig were among the other favorites to claim the tournament's $3.15 million first-place prize.

Odds-makers also expect Jon Rahm, Joaquín Niemann, Collin Morikawa, Bryson DeChambeau and Wyndham Clark to contend for the Wanamaker Trophy. The Top 50 players in the Official World Golf Ranking are on the tournament entry list.

The second major of the golf season, and 106th edition of the tournament, will stream on ESPN+ and air on ESPN and CBS.

Scheffler won his second major last month at the Masters. He will return to the course after taking a brief break to welcome his first child, son Bennett, with wife, Meredith, on May 8.

"I'm excited to be here, excited to play and to be here and compete," Scheffler said. "It's a major championship week. This is what I practice and prepare for, to play my best at these events. Hopefully that trend will continue."

A chance of rain is in the forecast for Thursday, with heavier showers expected Friday and Saturday. More rain is possible Sunday during the final round.

The 7,609-yard, par-71 course — designed by Jack Nicklaus — features challenging thick roughs around its greens and just three par-5s. New tee locations, replaced fairway grass, water hazards and dozens of bunkers also should come into play for the elite field of competitors. Several golfers said the course is in great shape and should favor long drivers, but rain might impact conditions of the fairways, bunkers and greens.

"It's in incredible shape," Rahm said of the course. "Hopefully, we don't get too much water and it can stay like this."

"It obviously presents a challenge. There have been low scores in the past and I can see it, because if you drive it well, you can give yourself chances. It's definitely an enjoyable course and a test."

KENTUCKY DERBY

These seven legendary races never get old

Dan Wolken
USA TODAY

Every Kentucky Derby is memorable in its own way, whether for controversy, a close finish or the enduring legacy of the winner.

But some have aged better than others as visual and visceral reminders of how beautiful, exciting and organic horse racing can be as a tableau for what's great about sports.

As the Derby reaches its 150th running, here are the "Scintillating Seven" editions you'll want to watch again and again.

(Editor's note: See replays for each of these seven Kentucky Derby races at sports.usatoday.com.)

Unbridled, 1990

One of the most beautiful moments in the race's history took place as Unbridled roared past Summer Squall with a powerful stretch run. But as impressive as his performance was, the lasting legacy of that day came thanks to ABC putting a camera on trainer Carl Nafzger and Frances Genter, the 92-year-old owner who had been involved in horse racing for 50 years but never won the Derby.

Because of Genter's failing eyesight, she had trouble seeing her horse during the race. So Nafzger narrated what was happening, and it became legendary television.

"He's taken the lead! He's taken the lead! He's on the lead, Mrs. Genter, he's on the lead! He's gonna win! He's gonna win! He's gonna win! He's a winner! He's a winner! He's a winner, Mrs. Genter! There he goes, right there! He's a winner, he's a winner, He's a winner! He's a winner! We won it! We won it! You won the Kentucky Derby! Oh Mrs. Genter, I love you."

Nafzger's race call and Genter's reactions were so pure and unscripted, you couldn't re-create it if you tried. And even all these years later, it'll bring a tear to your eye every time.

Alysheba, 1987

As the field hit the top of the stretch, it became clear this was going to be a two-horse race between Bet Twice, who had made the lead, and Alysheba, who had come from back in the pack and circled the field around the far turn. But as they came off the turn, Bet Twice veered from his path and right into Alysheba's running lane. That convergence caused the horses to clip heels — a dangerous scenario that could have resulted in one of them falling down and creating a potentially tragic scene. Instead, Alysheba stumbled briefly but stayed on his feet, went immediately back to racing and caught Bet Twice inside the eighth pole to win by three-quarters of a length.

"I thought I was gone," jockey Chris McCarron said in Sports Illustrated's recap of the race. "It was unbelievable. But he regained his balance, and when he did, he put me back in the saddle. At that point I didn't think I was gonna win it. I'm riding for my life, hoping to be second, because I thought they'd take Bet Twice's number down if he won. I had no idea my colt could recover from that and win."

Barbaro, ridden by jockey Edgar Prado, comes around the final turn on his way to winning the 132nd Kentucky Derby in 2006. ANDY LYONS/GETTY IMAGES

Grindstone, 1996

There's almost never a true photo finish at the Derby. But when Grindstone and Cavonnier hit the wire together, the result was so much in doubt that even announcer Dave Johnson on ABC had to stop for a beat and characterize it as "Too tight to call!" In an interesting twist, the cameras immediately panned to a smiling Bob Baffert, who trained Cavonnier, and then a concerned-looking D. Wayne Lukas talking to Grindstone owner William T. Young.

"We jumped up and started hugging and congratulating one another," Lukas said, according to The New York Times. "Then it struck me and I thought, 'Maybe we didn't even win.'"

Nobody in the stands could tell. Even the jockeys — Jerry Bailey on Grindstone and Chris McCarron on Cavonnier — didn't know. Tension was in the air for several minutes as the stewards looked at the photo. Eventually, Grindstone was declared the winner of the closest finish in Derby history: exactly a nose on the wire.

It was Lukas' third Derby win of four in his legendary career. And it was a brutal disappointment for Baffert, a 43-year-old relative newcomer to the top level of racing who was in the Derby for the very first time. Of course, Baffert would return the very next year to win with Silver Charm and then again in 1998, 2002, 2015, 2018 and 2020 to become the most dominant force in the sport.

Whirlaway, 1941

There aren't a lot of quality videos from this era of horse racing, but there's no mistaking Whirlaway, the horse they called "Mr. Longtail" because of the unusually long, thick tail that seemed to flap around like a flag in the breeze as he left his competition in the dust.

In the Derby, it looked like anyone's race at the top of the stretch. But in just a few jumps, Whirlaway emerges and accelerates so dramatically that the only thing you notice is his tail leaving everyone else behind. By the end of the race, Whirlaway had won by 8 lengths, which remains tied for the largest winning margin in the history of the race.

Whirlaway went on to win the Triple Crown as part of a remarkable career that saw him race 60 times with 32 wins and Horse of the Year titles as both a 3- and 4-year old.

Canonero II, 1971

One can only imagine what fans and other horsemen were thinking as the unknown jockey in brown silks and a mystery horse from Venezuela came from 18th place down the backstretch, blew by everyone on the far outside and won America's most prestigious race by nearly 4 lengths.

Though the payout didn't reflect it, because Churchill Downs at that time grouped the six longest shots in the race into a "mutual field" and Canonero II couldn't be bet on individually. This was arguably the biggest upset in Derby history. And it would have been impossible to see coming.

Bred in Kentucky, Canonero II was sold as a yearling for $1,200 and taken to Venezuela. He went to California for a pair of races as a 2-year-old but made no impact in either, was shipped back to Caracas and won five of his nine races there against presumably poor competition. His trip to the Derby was interrupted by two mechanical issues on the flight over, a four-day quarantine in Florida and a van ride to Kentucky that left him looking sickly. At Churchill, he breezed half a mile in an extremely slow 53 1/2 seconds and was pretty much laughed off the track — until he sprinted off the final turn.

Canonero II came back two weeks later and won the Preakness, securing his place as a horse racing folk hero.

Genuine Risk, 1980

Could a filly beat the boys? That was the big question heading into the Derby because it hadn't been done since Regret in 1915. In fact, it had been more than 20 years since a filly even tried.

The interesting part of the story came after the Wood Memorial Stakes, a traditional Derby prep in which Genuine Risk finished a disappointing third. After the race, trainer LeRoy Jolley declared there was no way she would contest the Derby. He was an old-school trainer, squeamish about pitting a filly against the colts. He thought it was too big a risk for her health and future prospects — a genuine risk, as it were.

But owners Bert and Diana Firestone wanted to run in the Derby and didn't think the 3-year-old crop that year was very strong. After some defections that left the race with only 13 starters, Jolley got on board and Genuine Risk was in the starting gate as a 13-1 long shot.

From an outside stalking position down the backstretch, Genuine Risk tracked down favorite Rockhill Native at the quarter pole and cleared the field entering the stretch. From there, it was just a matter of whether she had enough stamina to hold off charges from Jaklin Klugman and fast-closing Rumbo. With a terrific ride from Jacinto Vasquez, she crossed the wire about a length in front and made the cover of Sports Illustrated under the heading, "The Lady Is a Champ."

Barbaro, 2006

When you watch this race, what sticks out the most is how hard the other horses are running and how easy Barbaro is making it look as he pulls away from them. That perhaps explains why this horse was so beloved during his life and still remembered nearly two decades after his death.

It was, of course, one of the worst days in the history of the sport when Barbaro's right hind leg shattered just a few jumps out of the gate in the Preakness, beginning months of surgeries and rehab and health setbacks that ultimately ended with his death the following January.

But on Derby Day, Barbaro was a majestic sight to behold as he left his competition far behind and won by an easy 6 1/2 lengths under almost no urging from jockey Edgar Prado.

At that point, Barbaro was 6-for-6 in his career and on track to possibly become one of the best Thoroughbreds in the history of the sport. After winning the Derby in a fast time of 2:01.36 with seemingly lots in reserve, the Triple Crown seemed like a real possibility.

Though the story ended in shock and tragedy just two weeks later, his Derby run remains one of the most visually impressive performances in the history of the race.

Astros send 2020 AL MVP Abreu to minors amid slump

Cydney Henderson
USA TODAY

Three-time All-Star José Abreu has been sent down to the minor leagues.

Houston Astros general manager Dana Brown announced that Abreu, who won the American League's Rookie of the Year Award in 2014 and the AL Most Valuable Player Award in 2020 while playing for the Chicago White Sox, will head to the Astros' Triple-A affiliate in West Palm Beach, Florida, to "get his rhythm and timing back" at the plate.

"We met with José (Abreu) on this, and we both agree that this move will be good for him and for the team in the long run," Brown said Tuesday. "We are confident that a change of scenery and a new environment will help him get his rhythm and timing back. José is a team-first guy, and we applaud him for this. We know what this guy can do, and we're confident in his determination and work ethic."

Abreu, 37, is hitting a career-low .099 through 22 games, his second with the Astros. In 77 plate appearances, Abreu had seven hits, three RBI, three walks, no home runs and 18 strikeouts.

"You know what's been the hardest thing for me? And I say this from the bottom of my heart — I feel embarrassed," Abreu said in Spanish last week during the Astros' Mexico City series against the Colorado Rockies. "The people in this organization brought me here to do a good job. I haven't done that. The hard thing, too, is that my teammates see that I haven't done my job, although they've always supported me, always been by my side.

"But I won't stay down."

Brown said Abreu was "unselfishly on board" with the move, which went into effect Wednesday.

Brown added that this is only temporary and the Astros want Abreu to get "back to what he was doing last year."

Korda's win streak numbers spectacular

Beth Ann Nichols
Golfweek | USA TODAY NETWORK

When Nelly Korda tees it up starting today at the Cognizant Founders Cup in Clifton, New Jersey, at Upper Montclair Country Club, she seeks to accomplish something that's never been done on the LPGA — win a sixth consecutive start.

Only two other players have won five consecutive starts on the LPGA: Lydia Lopez in her magical rookie season of 1978, and Annika Sorenstam spanning from the end of the 2004 season to the first three events of 2005.

In their sixth starts Sorenstam tied for 12th at the Michelob Open at Kingsmill in 2005 while Lopez took a share of 13th at the Lady Keystone Open.

After her victory at the season's first major, the Chevron Championship, Korda became the first American to win five tournaments in one year since Juli Inkster in 1999.

When it comes to world rankings,

Korda leads the tour by a country mile. Her 12.30 points average in the Rolex Rankings is nearly double that of No. 2 Lilia Vu's average of 6.54.

In the Race to CME Globe Season standings, Korda's 2,702 points total is more than double that of second place Lydia Ko at 1,142. Korda, by the way, took off the entire spring Asian swing during a seven-week break from the tour.

There are so many ways to measure Korda's dominance. Here are a few more:

The overall record

Korda's record in six LPGA starts this season is a staggering 507-20-1 in stroke-play events. (She went 3-0 in the match-play portion of the T-Mobile event at Shadow Creek in Vegas.)

Korda lost to 15 players at the season-opening Tournament of Champions and finished sixth in the stroke-play portion of T-Mobile after 54 holes. The top eight players advanced to match play.

Strokes gained brilliance

Since starting her streak at the LPGA Drive On, Korda has gained a whopping 3.60 strokes per round on the competition, according to KPMG Performance Insights. That does not include Korda's three match-play victories in Las Vegas.

For the season, Korda leads the tour in strokes gained around the greens and greens in regulation, hitting 76%.

Room for improvement

KPMG stats guru Justin Ray broke down Korda's work on the greens, which by all accounts has been stronger this season.

Even so, Ray says she has one of the lowest putt-make percentages from 5 to 10 feet on tour. She also ranks 102nd on tour in one-putts per round.

"Her ball-striking prowess is such that she easily overcomes a miscue or two per round on the greens," Ray wrote for LPGA.com.

Scoring average

Korda's scoring average during the streak is 68.74, and that includes some brutal weather on the West Coast and major championship conditions.

Korda also is 46 under par on the par 5s alone, dating back to the Drive On.

For the season, Korda leads the tour in par-5 scoring (4.43) and par-4 scoring (3.93) and ranks 74th in par-3 scoring (3.09).

So far this season on the LPGA circuit, 16 of her 26 rounds have been in the 60s, a 62% clip.

Youngest to . . .

The LPGA is now a young person's tour, there's no question about it. And at age 25, Korda became the youngest American player to win two major titles since Juli Inkster managed the feat at age 24 in 1984. Amy Alcott won two majors by age 24 in 1980.

LPGA needs to ace shot amid boom in women's sports

Dan Wolken
Columnist
USA TODAY

On Sunday, April 21, a peak audience of 1.9 million people tuned in to NBC and watched Nelly Korda record her fifth consecutive tournament victory at the Chevron Championship, the first major of the LPGA season.

It's not a Caitlin Clark rating, but for a sport that has been plagued by poor television coverage, lack of break-through stars and questionable management, it was one of the better days women's golf has seen in quite some time.

In theory, the LPGA should be in prime position to reap some of the benefits being generated by the recent surge of interest in women's sports.

For one thing, their counterparts on the men's tour have turned off scores of fans thanks to the interminable struggle between the PGA Tour and LIV Golf and the odious greed driving so much division and dissatisfaction.

After years of unfairly blaming the prominence of Asian players for struggling to connect with stateside audiences, the LPGA now has a 25-year-old American from a prominent sporting family dominating the sport.

And given that the Summer Olympics are looming in Paris, where Korda will be defending her gold medal from Tokyo three years ago, this should be one of the easiest sales jobs women's golf will ever have to generate real, enduring new interest in what has always been a very good and watchable product.

The door is open.

There are no excuses.

The time is now.

But is women's golf truly ready for this moment?

I'm not sure.

Up until now, three things have been undeniably true about women's golf and its struggle to break through outside of its small, niche fan base:

Nelly Korda is going for her sixth LPGA win in a row at this week's Cognizant Founders Cup in New Jersey.
THOMAS SHEA/USA TODAY SPORTS

- The LPGA has failed to craft a compelling narrative for why people should watch, outside the mere fact of its existence.

- Some of its stars, including Korda prominently, haven't gone above and beyond to promote the game and make themselves familiar to large audiences.
- And television has struggled to give the product its due, both in terms of exposure and quality of broadcast.

The third point, in particular, was disappointing at the first major. While NBC should be given credit for putting the Chevron on its over-the-air network and not stuffing it on Peacock or the Golf Channel, it was jarring to flip between the LPGA and the concurrent PGA Tour event shown on CBS.

While the latter featured sharp graphics, high-tech camera angles and shot-tracing gizmos that are now standard in men's golf broadcasts, the NBC coverage looked like a penny-pinching, outdated endeavor — the bare minimum to get these women on TV.

At a time when we're now used to a women's basketball broadcast on ABC or ESPN looking and feeling the exact same as a men's broadcast, it was actually jarring to turn on NBC and see something that was so technically inferior to what the same network does when it shows The Players or the U.S. Open men's tournaments.

And because NBC clearly didn't devote as many camera crews as it would have for a men's major championship, it couldn't show much of what was happening in the groups ahead of Korda. As a result, the broadcast felt like it dragged along at a glacial pace because there just wasn't much action in-between Korda's shots.

While NBC may be happy with the rating and proud of giving women's golf an opportunity to be shown on network TV, it should be embarrassed by the way it presented the product. The magnitude of Korda's achievement and the moment for the LPGA were simply not done proper justice.

But this is more than a TV issue. Korda has been a potential gold mine for the LPGA ever since she won her first event at age 20, but she has been known for being quite discerning about how much time she's willing to spend doing the kind of extra promotional work that the sport badly needs.

Whether you attribute it to her preference for privacy or wanting to focus only on the birdies and bogeys, the reality is that it's hard for women's golf to maximize this moment when its biggest star is not known to be particularly media-friendly or willing to promote something other than her golf swing.

It was interesting before the Chevron that Stacy Lewis, a two-time major winner, said point-blank that Korda had a responsibility to be more visible and more accessible in service of the LPGA.

"Every week, she needs to be in here (with the media) talking about it and talking about how good she's playing, and I don't know what that's going to be, what that looks like for her," Lewis said. "I've been in her shoes, I've been No. 1 in the world, I've been the top American and you're asked to do a lot of things."

"But give the media a couple hours every week. That's what she's going to have to start doing. But her playing great golf, that's what pushes us more forward than anything."

It was notable that Korda, shortly after her Chevron victory, showed up for a brief chat on the "No Laying Up" podcast that is particularly popular with younger golf fans. That was a positive step. As was her appearance Monday evening on the red carpet at the Met Gala in New York.

On the other hand, it wasn't so great that Korda pulled out of the immediate next tournament, the JM Eagle LA Championship, citing exhaustion from winning four events in five weeks.

While it's hard to criticize athletes for being cautious with their schedule and their body, it's also true that Korda skipped the LPGA's Asian swing in February and early March. Barring an injury, there's an argument to be made that Korda should have at least tried to give it a go as the LPGA stopped in the nation's second-biggest media market.

The responsibility on star women's athletes to both perform and promote can often seem unfair, and maybe it is. Does Scottie Scheffler get the same scrutiny for how many media and promotional commitments he takes on or which tournaments he skips?

That's a legitimate conversation, but if the LPGA and its players aspire to capitalize on the wave of enthusiasm for women's sports and Korda's historic streak, they need to show more readiness than we've seen so far.

Korda needs to do better.

The LPGA needs to do better.

And television networks definitely need to do better.

Debut lacked luster but Clark has right attitude

Richard Morin
USA TODAY

UNCASVILLE, Conn. — Mohegan Sun Arena, radiating more energy than a coronal mass ejection, desperately hoped a performance of Caitlin Clark 3-pointers would dazzle like the Northern Lights that appeared in this area over the weekend.

But for large stretches of Tuesday's game, Clark, a perennial record-breaker in college, struggled off the launch pad during an up-and-down WNBA debut that saw the Indiana Fever fall 92-71 to the Connecticut Sun.

Despite finishing tied with Connecticut's DeWanna Bonner for a game-high 20 points, Clark (5-for-15 shooting) missed her first four shots and was forced to the bench midway through the first quarter due to foul trouble. She got her first bucket in the second quarter and didn't catch fire until the fourth, when she drained two consecutive 3-pointers and got to the line for two free throws on the following possession.

Despite the shaky performance that saw her break another record — Clark set an all-time high for turnovers in a WNBA debut with 10 — the 22-year-old sensation was more focused on the bigger picture when she spoke to reporters more than an hour after Indiana's loss.

"Obviously, I'm disappointed and nobody likes to lose, but that's how it is," Clark said. "I don't think you can beat yourself up too much about one game. We have to learn from it and move on."

All eyes were on Clark in Connecticut for one of the most anticipated professional debuts by an athlete in recent memory. ESPN was broadcasting in prime time. Media accommodations were at capacity. And you saw a Caitlin Clark jersey — be it of the Indiana or Iowa variety — almost anywhere you looked inside Mohegan Sun Arena, packed with its first sellout crowd (8,910 announced) since 2003.

"I thought it took me a while to settle into the game," said Clark, who also had three assists. "I thought the second half was a lot better and it's just getting more comfortable, which will come with experience and getting to play with these girls."

Clark insisted she wasn't nervous before the game. But she was excited and, above all, thankful for what Tuesday's game represented. How many people could be tuning in to their first WNBA game and fall in love with the game?

"The parity in women's basketball is what's making more people want to come and watch it," Clark said. "The more we can spread the love and show all the talent, we can keep elevating it. I've had a lot of fun being in the spotlight and helping to grow this game."

Clark, the No. 1 overall pick, holder of countless records at the college level and the catalyst for an explosion of interest surrounding women's basketball, spoke at length about gratitude before and after Tuesday's loss.

Even going back to Indiana with a defeat in tow, Clark said she feels lucky.

"With women's basketball across the board being at an all-time high," Clark said pregame, "how lucky are we that we get to come into this moment with everybody else? You can't really script it any better. I just feel very fortunate."

"The more we can share the love, the better this league is going to be."

Bruins edge Panthers, head home for Game 6

Field Level Media

Charlie McAvoy had a goal and an assist to help the Boston Bruins stave off elimination with a 2-1 win against the Florida Panthers in Game 5 of an NHL Eastern Conference semifinal series on Tuesday night in Sunrise, Florida.

The Panthers still lead the best-of-seven series 3-2 heading into Game 6 on Friday in Boston.

Morgan Geekie also scored and Jeremy Swayman made 28 saves for the Bruins, who have never overturned a 3-1 series deficit in 25 previous attempts.

"We made really good decisions with the puck tonight in the first period, which led to quality scoring chances," Boston coach Jim Montgomery said. "Tonight was our best game of the series."

Sam Reinhart scored and Sergei Bobrovsky made 26 saves for the Panthers, who had won three in a row to take command of the series.

Geekie gave the Bruins a 1-0 lead at 4:49 of the first period with his fourth goal of the playoffs.

Jake DeBrusk retrieved the puck behind the Florida net and passed it to Geekie driving toward the crease. Bobrovsky came off the goal line to attempt a save, but Geekie pulled the puck to his backhand and slid it into the net.

"They started well," Panthers captain Aleksander Barkov said of the Bruins. "They came out of the gate really hard and got going right away... We still had a lot of time to play better."

The Panthers were getting outshot 17-8 when Florida coach Paul Maurice gave his team a spirited pep talk during a timeout early in the second period.

"I thought they needed some profanity in their life, and I brought some,"

Maurice said of his comments during the timeout.

Barkov won the ensuing faceoff, and the Panthers kept the puck in the Boston zone before Aaron Ekblad took a shot from the right point that hit Reinhart in the slot.

Swayman tried to poke the puck through the middle, but it went back to Reinhart, who banked his shot off the post and into the net to tie it 1-1 at 6:23.

McAvoy moved Boston back ahead 2-1 at 10:25 of the second.

Boston played its second straight game without team captain Brad Marchand, who was injured late in Game 3 on a hit to the head by the Panthers' Sam Bennett. Marchand (three goals, seven assists) is tied with DeBrusk (five goals, five assists) for the Bruins' lead in points during the postseason.

Montgomery said postgame that Marchand is day-to-day.

Maurice added, "There will be 60 cameras at morning skate to see if Brad Marchand takes a sip of water."

Oilers pull even with Canucks after wild finish to Game 4

Field Level Media

Calvin Pickard recorded the win in his first NHL playoff start and Evan Bouchard scored the tiebreaking goal with 38.1 seconds remaining in regulation as the host Edmonton Oilers registered a 3-2 victory over the Vancouver Canucks on Tuesday to even their Western Conference semifinal series at two victories apiece.

Bouchard and Leon Draisaitl each had a goal and an assist for the Oilers, who recovered after their two-goal edge disappeared in the third period. Edmonton's Ryan Nugent-Hopkins also scored.

Pickard, whose previous playoff time was mop-up duty in Game 3 of this series in place of No. 1 netminder Stuart Skinner, made 19 saves.

Only 62 seconds after the Canucks pulled even and appeared to set up overtime, Bouchard fired a long point shot that made it through the crush of Oilers players and into the net for his fourth goal of the postseason.

Conor Garland and Dakota Joshua scored for the Canucks, who saw their road winning streak snapped at four games. Goalie Arturs Silovs stopped 27 shots.

Game 5 of the best-of-seven series will be Thursday (10 p.m. EDT, TNT) in Vancouver. That contest will follow a game that was an emotional roller coaster.

Draisaitl's eighth goal of the playoffs, and sixth on the power play, opened the scoring 11:10 into the clash. Draisaitl unloaded a rocket of a one-timer from the bottom of the right circle that Silovs got a piece of but not enough.

Draisaitl is the first Oilers player to begin a playoffs on a nine-game point streak since Mark Messier in 1988.

The Oilers' Evan Bouchard celebrates after scoring a goal against the Canucks in Game 4 on Wednesday. PERRY NELSON/USA TODAY SPORTS

The Oilers have scored on the power play in all nine of their playoff games.

Nugent-Hopkins doubled the lead with 40 seconds remaining in the second period. Sprung on a two-on-one rush by Mattias Ekholm, Nugent-Hopkins elected to shoot and buried his attempt inside the far post for his second goal of the playoffs.

Garland gave the Canucks a much-needed boost at 6:54 of the third period. Nikita Zadorov's point shot was blocked, but Garland gained the puck and from the slot found the mark thanks to a slick ricochet off the leg of Oilers defenseman Darnell Nurse.

The Canucks have been a successful comeback squad on a few occasions, and they continued that theme when Brock Boeser fired a shot from the left circle that banked into the net off Joshua. The tally was Joshua's fourth of the playoffs.

Canucks defenseman Carson Soucy served a one-game suspension for cross-checking Edmonton star Connor McDavid at the end of Game 3. Noah Juulsen took his place in the lineup.

("LEAP") PRESCHOOL MODEL
DATE OF NOTICE: May 3, 2024
NOTICE OF SOLE SOURCE PROCUREMENT

Pursuant to ORS 279B.075, David Douglas School District No. 40 intends to award a sole source contract without competitive procurement to the Institute for Racial Equity and Excellence. The contract provides support for the implementation of the Learning Experiences: An Alternate Program for Preschoolers and Parents ("LEAP") Preschool Model including content and coaching.

These services will integrate with existing work on inclusion and supporting children in inclusive settings that is currently in place between the Institute for Racial Equity and Excellence and the Multnomah Early Childhood Program. Therefore, sole source procurement is justified under ORS 279B.075(2)(d) because findings support the conclusion that these services are available from only one source. Anyone desiring to protest award of this sole source contract must file a written protest no later than 3:00 p.m. on Friday, May 10, 2024 with Patt Komar, Director of Administrative Services, at 11300 NE Halsey St., Portland, OR 97220. A protest may only be filed by an Affected Person as defined by OAR 137-047-0100 and must comply with the requirements for a valid protest contained in OAR 137-047-0710.

The District intends to submit this sole source procurement for school board approval at the next board meeting on Thursday, May 9, 2024, at 7:00 p.m. in the David Douglas School District Board Room, located at 600 SE 150th Avenue, Portland, OR 97233 and streamed online live on <https://www.youtube.com/user/DavidDouglasSD/live>.
