Project Management SOP

The Project Forman typically has daily morning meetings with utility staff to make sure everyone is on the same page concerning areas worked the previous day, intended work area for the present day, and to respond to any concerns or to discuss new information. Any field concerns that need to be resolved are taken with the crew that day to remedy. The utility can contact the Project Forman after hours if there are more immediate issues that need to be handled ASAP. At the end of the each work day, account data for the next day is loaded into the Meter Install Group handhelds. While the Project Forman is meeting with utility staff, the install crew is loading inventory for the day and depositing old meters in the utility specified area.

Crews work to complete areas by route, sequence, book, or area that makes sense logistically. At the end of each work day, completed data is emailed to the utility so everyone knows where our crews have been, and when they were there via GPS locations and time stamps. At the end of each route, data is interrogated by the Project Superintendent and then given to the utility (or directly to the billing service provider) for upload and use. As soon as meter change-out data is verified that it is in billing, it is ready to be read via drive-by using the laptop. All meters not installed would be read the same way the utility is currently reading. The plan would be to schedule the RG3 product specialist during that months scheduled read so that the first training can take place and walk the city thru the entire read and billing process for all meters that have been installed up until that point. The next two training days will be scheduled to coincide with the utility's next two live reading dates for billing purposes. Training in this manner gives the utility staff real life experience and allows time for meaningful questions to arise over the course of three months.

During installation, utility blackout dates are discussed with the utility and then honored as work order is selected. Upon completion of install a 100% read is verified by utility prior to crews demobilizing.

Inventory Control Procedures

Receiving Product:

1. Arrangements are made for product to ship to a secure location that our crews will use as a staging area. We highly encourage the municipality to allow inventory storage on their premises. If on site storage is not feasible, a location with multiple security measures including, at minimum, camera surveillance and key coded entry is selected.
2. Product is shipped to storage area and inventoried immediately.
3. Following initial inventory, the product is grouped and stacked according to meter size, then placed into individual control areas.

Daily Inventory Control:

1. By use of barcode scanner or written log sheets, product is checked out to each Project Foreman at the beginning of each work day in relation to the area (book, system, etc.) they are working in.
2. At the end of each day, each Project Foreman returns the excess product to a crew area, maintaining separation from the bulk inventory.
3. The following day, the Project Foreman picks up the excess product from the previous day and checks out the amount of additional product needed for that day's work.

Checks & Balances – Project Status Sheet

1. Project status sheets reflect current bulk inventory, each crew's daily excess product, completed installation data, and installations yet to be completed.
2. Installation data, bulk inventory, & daily product excess are reconciled at routine intervals.

Software integration and installation of Drive By equipment (laptop, hardware and collection equipment) will be coordinated through the field supervisor and primary contact with the city water dept.

Collecting Data at Install

Data from the billing service provider is arranged by column in a CSV file that is then loaded into the Meter Install Group's installation handhelds. We have worked with mostly all of the billing companies on many occasions and a seamless data transfer is easy to achieve. Set up usually takes no more than a couple of days. Most databases are proprietary, so they must convert the file to a usable CSV format. Our IT person will stipulate the required fields based on the city's requirements. Once the file is created, we load it onto our field handheld collection devices.

Our proprietary installation software (Data Now) is Windows based and specifically written for mass meter installation. It contains several fail safes and requires the data to be validated prior to proceeding to the next meter location. Each screen requires a certain piece of information and will not let the user progress to the next screen until the information is entered and all qualifying factors have been addressed. For instance, if all transmitter numbers are 6 digits, the software will notify the user if he tries to proceed after only entering 5 numbers and require him to remedy the situation.

The last screen gives the user an opportunity to add notes, explain unusual circumstance, detail additional work, etc. Once all information has been added, the GPS point is automatically locked in. A digital photo is also taken of the old meter register. We use the old meter number to name the photo file so that it can be easily found later. Two photos will be used on this installation as requested, one of old meter with previous read and one of new meter with read. Previous meter reading, current meter reading, new meter serial number and serial number of new transceiver will be captured.

Data collection is handled by the Crew Foreman. He is procedurally trained to collect meter data in the most efficient fashion possible. If new meter data is available by bar code, the use of a scanner is employed. Because human error is always a consideration, the bar code scanner minimizes the amount of numbers that are required to be hand entered. It is optimal to auto populate account information such as old meter numbers in our handhelds and then scan all new information such as the new meter number. That leaves only the old read to hand enter, greatly reducing the opportunity to transpose a number, etc.

Data Integration/Automated Data Process

Install crew will collect all meter data electronically via handhelds and send file to Longview office daily. Our data manager will review data for inconsistencies, which include duplicate meter and UID numbers, missing GPS coordinates, and incorrect or invalid final readings. If there is an inconsistency found during the data review, the meter install crew will be asked to re-visit the site in question to obtain this information. After review, the data will be emailed to the city's engineer and the appointed city representative in an Excel spreadsheets of all meters that have been changed out up to that point in time. These files will be for informational purposes. The Meter Install Groups data manager will be emailing this information on a weekly basis. Our data manager, and the city's billing clerk, will work on a weekly basis to ensure data is correct.

Once the city's utility billing clerk has approved that all data is valid, MIG will convert the data into the format needed by Incode (the city's utility billing software) and will forward this information by email to the city's utility billing clerk/Incode so that the accounts that have had the meter swap can be swapped in the utility billing software (Incode). This will be the mass meter change-out file. Due to the time in which it takes to get the information from field to approval, meter swap files will be done in batches that is agreeable by the utility/contractor and billing company. MIG will work to change out meters and provide periodic meter swap files until time of reading meters for the monthly cycle. A training date will be scheduled with the city's utility billing department and, once the first training has been performed, a training date will be discussed with the utility for the additional two trainings which will be held at the utility's convenience. During the first training, the implementer will travel with the utility's meter reader to read meters that have been swapped to the radio read system.

During the implementation phase, the trainer will attest that the utility understands the meter reading process, meter repair and troubleshooting techniques and will leave behind all printed materials that will help the utility to run the AMR system efficiently.
