The future of inclusive learning space design

Trend

1

Flexible and adaptable furnishings

The best inclusive learning spaces easily accommodate the day-to-day needs of special education students, and flexible furnishings make that possible. Our mobile and lightweight desks, chairs, boards, and storage allow teachers to instantly shape-shift their space to accommodate students' learning needs in the moment.

Designed to accommodate behaviors

Reduce disruptions in the classroom and create a more conducive learning environment for everyone with furnishings that support behavioral challenges, like hyperactivity or anxiety. From balancing stools to bouncy bands and standing desks, we have furnishings that can modify any classroom to help students manage their behaviors.

Sensory Spaces

Sensory spaces are designed to help children calm and focus so they are ready to learn and interact with others. Our plush rugs, bean bag chairs and sensory tools like sound panels and fiber optic lights allow teachers to create a cozy space that helps early learners regulate their emotions and develop sensory skills.

Your full-service furniture vendor

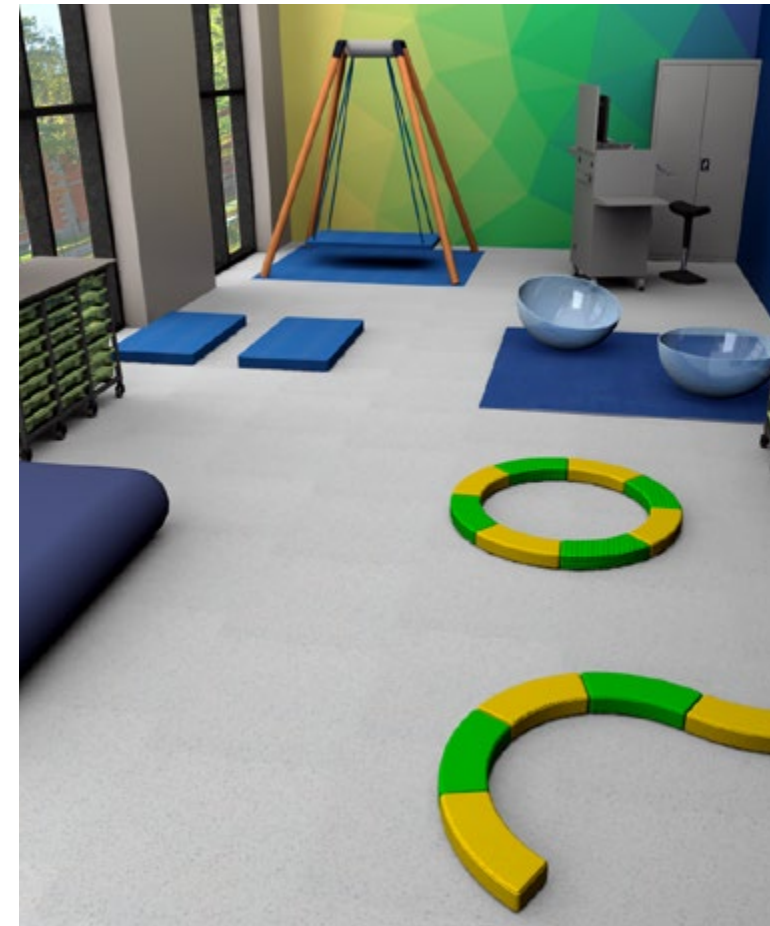

To create a truly inclusive learning space, educators must accommodate a wide range of learning abilities and learning styles, and often with limited space and resources.
