Overview

Via offers an end-to-end transportation technology platform and a turnkey operating model that allows partners of all sizes and levels of complexity to manage every aspect of public mobility. We offer innovative software and services that include student transportation, microtransit, ADA paratransit, senior transportation, and integrated trip planning and payment systems. To date, we have deployed transit solutions in partnership with over 700 communities in over 40 countries around the world, powering over 140 million rides. As the direct operator of over 75 transportation services around the globe, we deeply understand the day-to-day realities that public entities and nonprofits, including school districts, cities, counties, and regional agencies, face in delivering public transit. This first-hand experience directly informs our software products and operational models, allowing us to ensure that our offering is tailored to meet the specific needs of our partners and their communities.

Since Via's founding in 2012, we have delivered exceptional service to our partners and have collaborated with them to improve accessibility for their communities. Along the way, we have heard countless stories about the positive impact of our services from Riders ("I am able to get to where I need, at a cost I can actually afford"), Drivers ("It feels good to be able to provide a service and help people accomplish the things they need to during the day"), and Partners ("This partnership with Via is the next generation of what public transportation can be"). Building upon our experience delivering large-scale transportation services around the world, we are proud to have built a strong reputation for providing transportation that is safe, reliable, and efficient, especially for the passengers that need it most.
